The Chambers Band

Jake Pugh

The heart of the rhythm to move our fans, and the prankster of the Chambers Band is Jake Pugh. Pugh a former Lake Land Baseball player has done it all musically, playing punk rock, hard rock, experimenting with hip hop and now moving into the country genre. Making his first foray into life as a full time drummer, Pugh has been an integral part of the songwriting process as the band continues to put together original material for their first album. Formerly a guitarist and singer in bands such as, Nothing Personal, and Dirty Little Secret, Jake knows how to get a crowd a little bit rowdy. One of the hardest working men in the Central Illinois music scene, Pugh has committed himself to the growth and improvement, not only of his band, but of the landscape of music in the area. A regular at Jam Nights a crossed the area when not fulfilling his duties with The Chambers Band, his passion for music feeds his drive to be the best in the area.

Wally Bill

Longtime veteran of the Central Illinois music scene, Gary (Wally Bill) Wallace provides the low end for The Chambers Band. Raised on Led Zeppelin, ZZ Top, Lynyrd Skynyrd and Frank Zappa, he has played in rock bands like the Gutter Katz, Big Sky Theory, Riff Raff and others. One of his first bands was Stetson, a touring country band from southern Illinois. As a fan of the new country music, he was considering a return to his roots. Then he runs into Jake, Josh and Jaryd - making the decision an easy one. Proudly using All-American Made gear for that All-American sound, Wally Bill can often be found playing out in the audience - getting everyone involved in the show. Entertaining the great folks who come out to hear The Chambers Band is job #1.
